Vol. 3—No. 47 GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1923 THREE CENTS

Our City Comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

The Efficiency of a Proper Community Chest is Proved

IN OUR editorial of February 15th, we suggested a Community Chest might prove to be a great benefit, not only to the citizens of this city, but to organizations that are worthy of assistance.

We do know that the people at large are anxious for some relief from the constant solicitation of funds.

Recognizing this fact, we have made a study of the Community Chest idea and secured considerable data regarding it. This we are passing on to you.

The first Community Chest was started in 1914. It was an experiment. From that time to 1917, when the United States entered the war, the number increased to twelve. During the war, 400 war chests were established on a similar plan but to take care of the war time activities only. These chests were discontinued after the war.

On October 6th, 1922, a survey was taken of 120 cities with the following information gained.

Eighty-eight cities had thoroughgoing Community Chests.

Fifteen cities had Federation of Social Agencies.

Sixteen cities had Councils of Social Agencies.

This proves a tendency towards organization of social agencies throughout the country.

The Chest idea has not been tried out for a sufficient period to be absolutely sure of its success year after year. It has proved under this plan, these benefits:

1st. Many more people form the habit of giving. In a check of eight cities, with a combined population of over two million, that had established Community Chests, an average of 1300 percent increase in number of persons giving was recorded.

2nd. Those already in the habit of giving gave more generously.

3rd. It is easier to arouse enthusiasm among those soliciting funds. Larger sums can be raised with less effort. In a check of 18 cities, a gain of 186 percent in giving, was recorded after the Community Chest was inaugurated.

4th. A larger number of people are educated in what is being done in the community.

5th. It enables a city to study its needs and the knowledge gained makes for more effective giving.

6th. It saves the time of the solicitors and that of the contributors.

7th. The difficulty in raising budgets required is nearly overcome. Statistics show that out of a check of 51 cities, 19 raised 100 percent or more of the budget. Nine over 90 percent, twelve over 80 percent and ten were between 50 and 80 percent. Only one was below 50 percent.

The plan of organization in some cities includes the formation of a committee from the membership, or trustees of all organizations that are to share in the benefits of the Chest.

This committee draws up a budget, giving just what percentage of the funds are proposed for the different organizations. After a budget is prepared, it is submitted to the citizens in order that they may know the manner in which their donations are used.

Through a campaign of intensive publicity, the plan is told to all. After that, a large group of chosen citizens call on every citizen in the city, giving a chance to subscribe to the Chest. This drive is done with a great deal of enthusiasm, which spreads to both the solicitors and donors.

In conclusion, from all available data, we find

1st. That the Community Chest idea is growing.

2nd. Amounts collected and persons giving have increased enormously, as a result of the movement.

3rd. That all worth-while organizations are properly taken care of.

4th. That all citizens are kept in closer touch with the social agencies of our city.

Of course, there are some objectionable features to community giving, but it looks to us as though the benefits to be gain would outweigh the objections.

Let us study over this proposition carefully. If the Community Chest plan has enough merits we might adopt it.

The political pot has started to boil in Glendale as there are several offices to fill, the most important being those of city councilmen.

There will be vacancies in the city council caused by the expiration of the terms of A. H. Lapham and Dwight W. Stephenson.

Councilman Stephenson has refused to enter the race for re-election, but Councilman Lapham has signified his desire to run again for the office.

There are several other aspirants now in the field, among those mentioned being L. C. Davis and H. L. Finlay from the northwest part of the city, S. S. Gilhuly, Dr. W. C. Mabry and William Griffin from South Glendale, and S. W. Stern of Verdugo, northeast section. James W. Everington and James Rhoades are also mentioned as candidates.

George H. Bentley and Val Hollister are being urged by their friends but we understand up to the present time have refused to enter the race.

For a high school trustee to succeed Dan Campbell whose term expires, only one candidate has been mentioned, that being Albert D. Pearce. Mr. Campbell has refused to run for re-election.

For trustees of the grammar schools the terms of Mrs. Arthur Brown and Dr. P. O. Lucas are expiring and no candidates have been mentioned other than Mrs. Brown and Dr. Lucas, whom, we understand, are willing to run for re-election.

A motion was passed instructing the treasurer to send $50 to the Rotary Club of Astoria, Oregon, to help the city, which was recently partially destroyed by fire.

Harry Webb read a letter from the California Highway Commission regarding the improvement of state highways. It was later put into a resolution and passed. A motion was carried to subscribe $10 towards the postal benefit fund. It was decided that a member would be delegated to represent the Glendale Rotary Club at the International convention of Rotary clubs to be held in St. Louis in June. Several of the members indicated their intention of attending. The naming of the delegate was deferred until after the annual meeting. A letter from Elliott Wyman of Los Angeles was read, in which he told of plans to have a special train for Rotarians from California to the St. Louis convention.

George U. Moyse announced that the Glendale club so far in February had a record of 100% in attendance. Ed Hewitt called the attention of members to the city election to be held in April. This was followed by a general discussion. The name of George Bentley, member of the club, has been talked of outside of Rotary for some time and the fact was presented to the members of the Rotary club to use their influence as individuals to persuade him to accept a nomination.

President Roy L. Kent told of the Boy Scout drive for funds, the amount subscribed being approximately $5,500.

Elbert L. Pauley of Pasadena gave a short talk on the district conference, which is to be held in Pasadena on April 5, 6 and 7. After the talk a motion was passed that the Glendale Rotary Club would register 100%.

George B. Karr called attention to the invitation to attend the Orange Show and be the guest of the San Bernardino Rotary Club. Reservations were made for seventeen. The meeting is for next Saturday.

EXPOSITION TO ARRANGE SPACE FOR MERCHANTS

Reservations to Be Ready by the First of Next Week

Space for the merchants' exposition will be available for reservation the first of the week for all Glendale merchants, according to an announcement made by Director General Leavitt, this morning. Glendale men will be given preference with regard to space in this show.

"I want to correct a misunderstanding that seems to be prevalent about town," said Mr. Leavitt this morning, "to the effect that if Glendale merchants do not exhibit that we will bring merchants from Los Angeles to take their places. This is not true. We will have some exhibitors from outside of Glendale, but I assure the Glendale merchants they will not conflict with the local exhibits. We will only solicit whosesale houses from outside Glendale and in this way we believe we will be giving additional help to the exhibitors from Glendale."

MRS. GIBSON GETS WASHINGTON DAY PRESENT

Pleasing Assembly Marks Birthday of First President at High

A simple but very pleasing assembly was enjoyed at Glendale high Thursday noon in celebration of Washington's birthday. It had been arranged by Morgan Smith.

Eloene Truitt announced the opening numbers played by the school orchestra, directed by Mrs. Dora Gibson, "America" and "Yankee Doodle." In connection she explained that the air for "America" had been borrowed from England, being the same as "God Save the King," while the "Yankee Doodle" tune is claimed by the English, the Germans and the Hollanders. Both were played with great spirit and properly applauded.

Mrs. Gibson was then summoned to the platform by Ivan Dow and when she appeared there before the parted curtain was presented with a beautiful baton, the gift of the orchestra and the girls' glee club, in recognition of her need of one, and appreciation of her work for both organizations. She also received a beautiful bouquet of carnations and ferns.

Though taken by surprise she made a neat little speech of acknowledgement telling how much she would prize it, how carefully she would guard it, ending with the story of the man who received a can of brandied cherries and said he not only appreciated the cherries, but the spirit in which they were given.

The boys' glee club, directed by Mrs. Florence Parker and with Winifred Parker at the piano, sang quite beautifully "My Own United States," and "The Flag Without a Stain."

A stately minuet was sung and staged to the music of the Mozart minuet by girls of the glee club in quaint colonial costume, the leaders in the dance being Eloene Truitt, Lois Olmstead, Lucile Allen and Frances Wyman, the act ending with the song off stage as the curtain went down.

Marie Gray contributed two excellent readings—"The Annual Protest" and an Italian dialect number "The Best of Friends," and Claude Whitfield sang in solo, "Land of Home and Glory."

The stage was very prettily set with a tall pillar twined with ivy centering it in the background, and pictures of Washington on either side, enhanced by special electric lighting.

The assembly was given twice before large audiences.

CO-EDUCATION IS APPROVED BY GRADUATES

By HERBERT LITTLE
(United Staff Press Correspondent)

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 23 (United Press).—Mingling of the sexes in schools is all right. Co-educational institutions are the proper places to send one's children.

So say the majority of 1,000 university people, 600 of the women, questioned in a survey by M. V. O'Shea, University of Wisconsin professor of education, with the co-operation of the U. S. bureau of education and 14 important colleges and universities.

Four-fifths of the women questioned replied unhesitatingly that they would send their daughters to a co-ed school. All but 55 of the total declared that boys and girls should be educated together in high schools.

The questions were sent to 5,000 women graduates of classes between 1898 and 1904, from Northwestern, Minnesota, Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, Chicago and Iowa, leading co-education universities; and from Bryn Mawr, Radcliff, Wellesley, Goucher, Smith, Simmons, and Colby, foremost among the exclusive colleges for women. In addition 100 upper-class women students and about 300 upper-class men students at the University of Wisconsin were questioned by personal representatives.

The women also were asked if they would recommend that their daughters take the same course that they took, and whether they would take the same courses, "if they had their education to do over again."

Home-makers, social workers and mothers generally expressed themselves as dissatisfied with the preparation that women's colleges and co-educational schools gave them for life. Teachers on the whole were satisfied with their preparation.

The graduates of the colleges for women, however, complained more generally of the lack of opportunities to pursue courses leading to home-making and motherhood than did the graduates of the co-ed schools. The oldest graduates, from 1898 to 1902, expressed the greatest dissatisfaction with the preparation for life furnished by their alma maters. Typical comments were:

"I regret that neither in high school nor in college did I have an opportunity to take domestic science."

"Our small high schools need more work in physical training for all, not just basketball for the ones who like it."

"Women are better prepared to play their proper role in life if they have the opportunity to work and play with boys and men in high school and in college."

"The mingling in daily life seems more normal than life in segregated groups."

"A girl will never get a man's point of view if she is segregated."

"Most of the flirting is harmless, quite normal and thoroughly enjoyable. If these impulses are given free expression under proper control, it is better than repression."

One of the minority who favored women's colleges declared, "women have too little of segregated athletics and too much dancing and fraternity teas."

Ninety out of the 100 women still in the university favored co-education, declaring that contact with men was good for both, especially women.

Eighty-seven per cent of the several hundred men favored co-education. "Women have shown that in cultivating their minds it is not necessary to neglect personal appearance and accomplishment," was the trend of their reasonings.

The minority thirteen per cent of the men declared they "saw too much of women," and that "they are not so thrilled by them as they would be if they met them less frequently."

A tug is the only thing that has its tows behind.

ART. 2

Article 1st shows that science and philosophy are one in principle, method and definition;

That purpose is their central and ultimate law.

While Evolution, having no Spirit has no purposes and no purpose, but only a blind material process without choice or design.

It comes and goes by "Persistence of Toras" forever.

Evolution

Is an absolutely false theory. It assumes to be scientific, and to account for all things and beings that exist and live. It claims to be eternal and that matter is eternal, and holds all the power and potency of life in existences. It teaches that matter consists of "persistent force," in various relations, which form the contents of our idea of matter.

Of course there is no need or chance for a God, and if there is a God, we cannot know who, or what he is or is like.

Consequently there is no Purpose in anything, only a blind, inexorable fatalistic, chance process, by which all things and beings come and go; evolute and dissolve eternally.

Then these men have the gall to call themselves scientists and philosophers.

Science

What is it? It is the regular arrangement of any department or field of knowledge, and its realities and facts into their natural system, in accord with and under direction of their main, central truth and purpose.

Philosophy, being the science of genluses, is the regular arrangement of all knowledge, and each of its departments, and their realities and facts, into their natural system, in accord with and under direction of their ultimate law and central purpose.

But Evolution having no purpose is neither science or philosophy because no spirit.

Evolution is pseudo science and false philosophy. The term itself is from ex, out of, volvus, to roll. At first it meant to roll out, to expand, to open up, and was synonomous with develope. Either of these terms, at the start were good, but evolution has become vicious by bad use. It has come to mean an unintelligent, inexorably blind, fatalistic process, in the universe, by which things, beings and events come and go endlessly, with no purpose or intended end. Thus it has acquired a meaning that is both false and vicious. For there is no such fatal process, or state of things. There is no fate, except in the false thinking of evil men, who are themselves false and evil doers. The truth is; nothing occurs in the realms of nature or God, or in the affairs of men, without the purpose, control and direction of some spirit, human, devilish or divine. Nothing exists without a Purpose, and intention or design.

The universal fact, law and truth is, that in every act, action and fact, of every intelligent being, in whatever they differ, as they do, in many things rightly, they all and always agree in this, they, without exception, ever have a purpose in all they do or try. This is the universal law of action, there is conscious intent. The above meaning of evolution has become fixed, so that it is not possible to use it without carrying that sense in it. More, it is probably never used now without the intent of expressing that idea. The term develope is not liable to such abuse, for it has not that sense, the sense that is always false, and make the term so vicious and misleading, that it must be abandoned, to avoid error, and the teaching of falsehood, instead of truth.

The origin of evolution is unchristian and heathen. The Egyptians held that all things came from a Chaotic Egg. About 700 B. C. Thales thought that all things came from water. About 611 B. C., Ananximander taught that all was from air. About 556 B. C., Anaximines said all was from fire. About 500 B. C., Anaxagoras thought that all consisted of innumerable atoms. Orderly arrangement among them was produced by a Nous, a Mind, an intelligent Power who is infinite and self existent. Democritus and Epicurus taugh that, in infinite time, chance, not intelligence wrought, out of numberless atoms, all existing things. In contract with this and long before, 500 years David puts the truth in Psalm CXXXIX, 15 and 16 thus, "My substance was not hid from Thee when I was made in secret, and curiously wrought in the lowest parts of the earth. Thine eyes did see my substance, while yet unperfect, and in thy book, all my members were written, which in continuance, were fashioned, when as yet, there were none of them."

In modern times Liebnitz, 1693, proposed the opinion, that the world was in fluid condition. Maillet, Wright and Lamber expanded this thought. In 1766, Kant in his theory of the heavens, originated the nebular hypothesis. In 1796 to 1828 La Place wrought this into the tehory of the solar system. Sir William and Sir John Herschel further perfected it. In Biology, Buffon, in his natural history, in 1749 to '88 distinctly taught the transmutation of species. In 1774 Lord Monbodo suggested the possible origin of man from the ape. In 1809 Lamarck, in his philosophy, of zoology, proposed the hypothesis of organic development.

His father intended him for a Jesuit Priest, but he became a naturalist and a panthelstic deist. In 1809 he published his Philosophy of Zoology, and in 1816 his history of animals "Sans Vertebrata." He explained the whole organization of animals and the formation of different organs, by four laws, as follows:

"First, Life, by its proper forces, tends continually to increase the volume of every body possessing it, and to enlarge its parts, up to a limit, which it brings about."

Second, The production of a new organ, in an animal body results from the supervention of a new want, continuing to make itself felt, and a new movement, which the want gives birth to and encourages."

Third, The development of organs and their force of action are constantly in the ratio to the employment of those organs.

Fourth, All which has been acquired, laid or changed, in the organization of individuals, in the course of their life is conserved by generation, and transmitted to the new individuals, which proceeds from those, which have undergone those changes.

Those laws he applies thus. He says, "ruminant animals, being pursued by carnivora, their legs grow slender, and become only fit for support, while their jaws becoming weak, they have made their attacks with the crown of their heads, and this led to the growth of their horns." So the giraffe's neck grew long by stretching it out, to feed on the foliage." "Also the kangaroo, by sitting upright, to support its young in its pouch, dwarfs its fore legs by non-use, and grows its hind legs and tail by constant use." The mollusc and snal, by crawling along hits some obstruction and the obstruction draws out their horns. This is the assumed principle of evolutionists, viz, that the working force of life is in the external circumstances, the environments of life. This is simply false. The fact and truth is, that in all cases of life the working forces of life are always in the internal facts, while the external facts are only the material and means by which life works out its end.

The above statements by Lamarck, and followed by others are simply a distortion of the facts, and a series of crude imaginations, contradicting the facts, and reversing the processes of nature, in the name of science. This is the fatal false principle of evolution always. It puts the cart before the horse.

Another and similar pseudo thinker was Erasmus Darwin, the grandfather of Chas. R. Darwin. He was born 1731 and died 1802. In 1794 to '96 he produced his Zoonomia the laws of animal life. In that, he says, "That one and the same kind of living filaments is, and has been the source of all organized life." And again, "would it be too hold to imagine that in the great length of time, since the earth began to exist, perhaps millions of ages, before the commencement of the history of mankind, all warm blooded animals have arisen from one living filament, which the great first cause endued with animality and with the power of acquiring new parts, attended with new propensities, directed by irritations, sensations, volitions and associations, and thus possessing the faculty of continuing to improve by its own inherent activity, and delivering down these improvements, to its posterity, world without end."

These ideas and teachings gave rise to the modern theory of evolution, in the hands of Chas. R. Darwin, Alfred Russell Wallace, Thos. Huxley, William Tyndal, Ernest Hackel, Herbert Spencer and his American Echo, John Fiske, of Harvard, and others of their ungodly, parroting disciples, who are only the echos of the above traitors to humanity and to True Science and Philosophy.

We shall let Herbert Spencer represent the European evolutionists, and John Fiske the Evolutionists of this country. The rest are simply Charlatans, Pseudo scientific goslings, they only learn to cackle as the old gees do, but think they have a special mission to make more noise.

Feb. 12, 1809, at Shrewsbury, England, Chas. R. Darwin, the grandson of Erasmus Darwin, and son of Dr. R. W. Darwin, was born. His parents wished him to be a clergyman, but instead he became a naturalist, and tne author of Darwinism. He followed the notions of Lamarck, of his own grandfather and of Malthusism. He spent his whole life trying to elaborate them, chiefly in his "Origin of Species" and "Descent of Man." He accepted the false theory of Malthus, "that all life is in a state of war," which gives rise to a struggle for existence and life, that in this struggle the weakest perish, and only the strongest and best survive. On this, which he calls "Natural Selection," he bases the law of progress, by means of the variations that occur in the lapse of time. He teaches that all of the over 30,000 species of plants and animals have originated by these variations from one species to another, all coming from "protoplasm," the first forms of life.

In the first place, Malthusism is false. For the condition of things is not a state of "universal war," but one of "mutual aid and helpfulness." All things work. They work together, and they work for good and not for evil.

SEMI MONTHLY CLUB MEETS

Members of the Semi-Monthly club had a quiet but very delightful session Thursday at the home of Mrs. Charles Rudel on Vine street. A mid-day luncheon was served by the hostess at which a red, white and blue color scheme was carried out in floral and other appointments, covers being laid for 12. Guests of honor were Miss Reisling, of Aurora, Ill., who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. C. Smith; Mrs. Jordan of Webster, N. D., who is the guest of Mrs. T. Keleher, and Miss Quinn, cousin and house guest of Mrs. Peter L. Ferry. Some of the guests came in colonial costume and the function was a very pretty affair.

FLINTRIDGE FOLKS HAVE GLENDALE BABY

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Szelazkiewicz of Flintridge are the proud parents of a baby boy which was born to them Thursday morning, February 22, 1923, at a Glendale hospital. The mother and child are doing nicely and their many friends are extending wishes that the newcomer might become as great as George Washington and Thaddeus Kosciuszko, the hero of two hemispheres, whose birthdays were celebrated conspicuously throughout the United States yesterday.

Mr. Szelazkiewicz is a prominent business man of Los Angeles and Glendale and owns several business blocks here. Mrs. Szelazkiewicz is a member of the Eastern Star.

HARRIETT MAE TEA ROOM IS WELCOMED

Public Responds to Dainty Idea of Miss Reynolds

Miss Reynolds, who celebrated Washington's Birthday by opening to the public Thursday evening the "Harriett Mae Tea Room" at Harvard and Maryland, had reason to be much gratified by the response of the public after the strenuous work she had expended in making ready for the event.

It took on the aspect of a social event as several large parties came for the dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Newman were host and hostess for a group of twelve, and Mr. Harry Brinkiron entertained an equal number. H. S. Webb and his mother, Mrs. Frankie Webb, were guests, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Guthrie and daughter.

The spacious room, attractively furnished with pretty painted tables and chairs of colonial type, beautiful dishes of English ware, snowy papery and shining silver and glass, with flowers in the national colors at every table, made a delightfully social setting. The main thing, however, was the dinner, which all agreed was delicious from soup to coffee, and well served. There is no question it Miss Reynolds can maintain the pace set on this occasion that she will have all the patronage she can take care of, for Glendale has need of such a tea room.

BRAND CENTRAL MARKET IS BUSY

Business at the Brand Central Market, 207 North Brand, is increasing right along, and the people in the 200 block appreciate the fact that they have a first-class market.

There is a first-class grocery conducted by Mr. Estes, a number one meat market run by William Schmidt & Son, a vegetable stand by Mr. Weidman, a bakery by Mr. Crosson, and a light lunch and doughnut stand by Mr. Polley, all under one roof and very conveniently arranged. Right prices and good service prevail at this market.

ILLINOISANS' PROGRAM

The Illinoisans are planning a splendid program for their rally Friday evening, the 23rd, in Music Art hall, 233 S. Broadway, Los Angeles. All the Illinois "Suckers" are cordially invited and the tourists will be specially welcome. Readings, musical numbers and roll call of counties will precede the dancing and refreshments will be served.

A bather got out of her depth and her screams soon brought a life guard to the rescue. A few strokes brought him to the girl and he reached out a muscular arm just as she was about to sink. At this moment her frantic struggles dislodged her bathing cap, which floated away, carrying with it what was more precious, her wig. "Oh, save my hair," she cried, save my hair."

"Madam," replied the gallant rescuer, as he towed his burden to the shore, "I am only a life saver, not a hair restorer."

If you don't use your head you might as well have it amputated.

WOMEN'S FOREIGN MISSION STUDY CLUB MEETS

The Study Club of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Methodist Church was entertained Thursday at the home of Mrs. T. A. Wright, 141 North Louise.

The current chapter in "Building With India" was the theme of the day and was of special interest because of the presence of special guests who are returned missionaries. Mrs. R. W. Munson, sister of the hostess, spent many years in the far east and speaks the Malay language. She personally knew Bishop Thorburn and his sister, Isabella Thorburn, who established the first college for women in India, and had many interesting things to tell of them and their work.

Also present was Miss Keller, a returned missionary from China, who will be the speaker at the regular missionary meeting to be held at the church next Thursday. Her own work in China will be her topic which will be illustrated with dolls dressed in the native costumes of China.

At the close of the study hour refreshments were served by the hostess who used a very beautiful tea set brought from Japan by Mrs. Munson.

No attempt was made to celebrate Washington's birthday beyond giving his picture a place of honor. Seventeen were present and Mrs. Scripps led the review of the day.

The centerpiece was a beautiful cut glass basket filled with red carnations. Favors were of hatchets, symbolic of Washington's birthday. The hostess was the recipient of many beautiful gifts and a pleasant social afternoon was enjoyed.

ANDREW JOHNSONS HAVE HOUSE GUESTS

Mrs. W. V. Halliday and Miss Myrtle Woodman of Danbury, Conn., are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Johnson of 1146 East Lexington drive. Many social functions are being planned in their honor. Mrs. Halliday and Mrs. Johnson are sisters. Miss Woodman is an accomplished pianist. The visitors will remain here about a month.

It was the drawing lesson, and a class of small children were drawing from memory. They had been told to draw a river, with two figures sitting on the bank, one of whom was to be fishing.

The teacher was going around the class, when she came to a small boy who had finished his drawing.

She looked at his paper and was surprised to find only a river.

"Why, Jack," she said, "where are the two people I told you to draw?"

"Well, you see, Miss Jones," he answered, "I'm not very good at drawing people, so I've put up a notice: "Trespassers will be prosecuted!"

A small boy came hurriedly down the street and halted breathlessly in front of a stranger who was walking in the same direction.

"Have you lost half a dollar?" he asked.

"Yes, yes, I believe I have!", said the stranger, feeling in his pockets. "Have you found one?"

"Oh, no," said the boy. "I just want to find out how many have been lost today. Yours makes fifty-five."

Princess Yolanda Wins Her Father's Consent to Love Match with Count

Princess Yolanda, like Princess Mary and the Duke of York, has had her way. She will marry for love. Announcement of her engagement to marry Count Calvi di Bergolo, captain of cavalry and later bombardier in the Italian army during the world war, has been announced at Rome. At one time it was reported that she was to marry the Prince of Wales and later that she would become the bride of the Crown Prince of Belgium. Princess Yolanda, eldest daughter of the king and queen of Italy, met Bergolo a year ago during a horse show in London. He rode with distinction and she is an enthusiastic horsewoman. She is twenty-two years old.

From dospondency the artists mind leapt to radiant hope—a wealthy looking visitor had come into his studio.

As he showed him round he talked glowingly of his pictures.

"Now, this nocturne," he said, "took me ten months to paint. It was started in a garret——"

"Yes?"

"And a hundred thousand wouldn't buy it now!"

"No," said the visitor, looking at it thoughtfully, "and I'm one of the hundred thousand."

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.—Advt.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

The opportunity to purchase a splendid manufacturing business located in Glendale is offered by the owner for a short time. This business has only been established a few months and is now making from $700.00 to $1000.00 per month. It is growing rapidly, and in six months' time or less will be doubled. It is a good proposition for one, two or three persons, and can be handled nicely by those of the Adventist Church, as Saturday closing will not materially affect the business. The price is $15,000.00, which includes valuable property and territory rights. Some terms will be given. For interview, address

ORDINANCE NO. 745

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING SECTION 16 OF ORDINANCE NO. 551, PASSED MARCH 23, 1922, AND ENTITLED, "AN ORDINANCE PROHIBITING THE SALE, MANUFACTURE, TRANSPORTATION OR UNLAWFUL POSSESSION OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS, AND PROVIDING PENALTIES FOR VIOLATIONS HEREOF, AND REPEALING ORDINANCE NO. 65 AND ALL OTHER ORDINANCES IN CONFLICT THEREWITH."

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE:

SECTION 1: That Section 16 of Ordinance No. 551, passed March 23, 1922, and entitled, "An Ordinance prohibiting the sale, manufacture, transportation or unlawful possession of intoxicating liquors, and providing penalties for violations hereof, and repealing Ordinance No. 65 and all other Ordinances in conflict therewith," be amended to read as follows:

"SECTION 16. It shall be unlawful to have, possess, transport or manufacture any liquor or property designed for the manufacture of liquor intended for use in violating this Ordinance or which has been so used, and no property rights shall exist in any such liquor or property. A search warrant may be issued as provided in the Penal Code of the State of California. If it is found that such liquor or property was so unlawfully held, possessed, transported or manufactured, or had been so unlawfully used, the liquor, and all property designed for the unlawful manufacture of liquor, shall be destroyed. No search warrant shall issue to search any private dwelling occupied as such unless it is being used for the unlawful sale, or manufacture of intoxicating liquor, or unless it is in part used for some business purpose such as a store, shop, saloon, restaurant, hotel, or boarding house. The term 'private dwelling' shall be construed to include the room or rooms used and occupied not transiently but solely as a residence in an apartment house, hotel, or boarding house. The property seized on any such warrant shall not be taken from the officer seizing the same on any writ of replevin or other like process. Any Justice of the Peace, City Recorder, Police Judge, Superior Judge, or any judicial officer having jurisdiction any place within this county shall have the same power to issue search warrants and warrants for arrest now exercised by a United States Commissioner, United States Judge, or other United States judicial officer.

When the Chief of Police, or any police officer or other official charged with the enforcement of this ordinance, shall discover any person in the act of transporting in violation of this ordinance intoxicating liquors in any wagon, buggy, automobile, truck, aircraft, or other vehicle, it shall be his duty to arrest the person or persons in charge of such vehicle and to seize and take possession of the vehicle and team, or automobile, truck, aircraft, or any other conveyance used for the transportation of such intoxicating liquor, but the said vehicle or conveyance shall be returned to the owner upon execution by him of a good and valid bond with sufficient sureties in a sum double the value of the vehicle or conveyance, which said bond shall be approved by the Police Judge of the City of Glendale, and shall be conditioned to return said property to the custody of the Court on the day of trial to abide the judgment of the Court. The Court, upon the conviction of the person or persons so arrested shall, unless good cause to the contrary is shown by the owner, order a sale by public auction of the property so seized, and the officer making the sale, after deducting the expenses of keeping the property and the costs of the sale, shall pay all liens according to their priorities which are established by intervention or otherwise at said hearing or in other proceedings brought for said purpose as being bona-fide and as having been created without the lienor having any notice that the carrying vehicle was being used or was to be used for illegal transportation of liquor, and shall pay the balance of the proceeds into the Treasury of the City of Glendale. All liens against property sold under the provisions of this section shall be transferred from the property to the proceeds of the sale of the property. If, however, no one shall be found claiming the team, vehicle, automobile, truck, aircraft, or other conveyance, the taking of the same with a description thereof shall be advertised by the Chief of Police in some newspaper of general circulation published in the City of Glendale once a week for two weeks, and if no claimant shall appear within ten (10) days after the last publication of the advertisement, the property shall be sold and the proceeds after deducting the expenses and costs shall be paid into the Treasury of the City of Glendale."

SECTION 2: This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on the thirtieth day after its passage. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage of this Ordinance, and shall cause the same to be published once in the Glendale Daily Press, the official newspaper of said City.

Passed by the Council of the City of Glendale on this 15th day of February, 1923.

KICKING SYRUP STICKS BUREAU OF PROHIBITION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (United Press).—Legal minds of the Federal Prohibition bureau are pondering one of the most baffling problems of dry enforcement ever presented to them by Commissioner Haynes.

Haynes encountered the problem on his Western trip when puzzled directors of Pacific Coast states came to him and sked him what to do about it.

The problem is this: Certain concerns on the Pacific Coast are manufacturing a grape syrup perfectly free from alcohol. They are said to sell it like grape juice, shipping it in cold storage to any point in the United States. When it leaves their hands, it is perfectly innocuous.

Certain mysterious and rapid fermentations commence while the syrup is in cold storage, however, with the result that when finally consumed in a grape soda, it has a powerful "kick" said to total 7 to 8 per cent.

The question the legal sharks are pondering is "Who violates the law in this case?" The manufacturing concerns do not, it appears, because their product is wholly legal.

The transporters and commercial dispensers do not violate the law, apparently, because no chemical analyses have yet been made rapidly enough after seizure in railroad yards or at soda fountains to prove that the beverage at the time of seizure was not as inocuous as when it left the factory. The invariable defense is "The fermentation must have taken place between the time you seized and analyzed it, because it was only grape syrup when it left us."

Prohibition chemists say they will have to take portable testing apparatus along with them when seizures are made to determine on the spot if the beverage is being sold with illegal alcoholic content.

ATTRACTIVE CAPES

Of unusual interest are long capes of a new knitted fabric which has a self toned brocaded design. The collars are of the material in a contrasting color and are made of strips braided together.

TO BE ANOTHER BIG KAFETERIA SHOE SALE

The Kafateria Shoe Store, 126 N. Brand boulevard, announces another big shoe sale on page two of this issue. This time it is a $1.00 shoe sale, and the large bins of the store are filled with various kinds of shoes which will be sold at $1.00 a pair. By reading the advertisement on page two an idea can be gained of the variety to select from.

Manager Cushman says this particular sale promises to eclipse his previous efforts, in point of offering better buys and quantity of goods sold, and he feels highly elated over the sale, which he says will positively close Monday night.

NATIVE SILK WORMS

The reason why the silk from the many species of native moths which spin cocoons cannot be used commercially, is that the threads fuse together so that they cannot be unwound, according to Dr. A. L. Melander, entomologist at the State College of Washington.

Recently a farmer near Sunnyside was reported to have found a native silk worm which produces three broods a year, from which he hopes to obtain a merchantable silk. As yet the college has not had sufficient detail on the discovery to draw conclusions as to the factory value of these worms, but Dr. Melander said, when consulted:

"Many species of moths spin a cocoon in which to pupate. This cocoon is made of soft silk, and with a great many species contains enough silk to warrant rearing caterpillars, if it were not for the impossibility of unreeling the silk from the cocoons.

"The silk worm that is cultivated produces a light colored cocoon from which the silk can be easily unrolled by softening in hot water. Our native silk worm moths have a darker silk, but the threads fuse together in the making of the cocoon and so the silk can not be utilized.

"It may be that some future chemist will discover a means of softening the silk threads, in which case the production of a low grade of silk would be easily possible in many places.

"Just what species Mr. Seaman is working with is not known to us; it is particularly difficult to guess if his statement that there are three broods a year is correct."

A Cincinnati man recently took seventeen wives in one day. He's a photographer.

PURELY PERSONAL

W. E. Hewitt returned Thursday from a stay of several days at San Diego. It was a trip for rest and recreation on which he was accompanied by his father. They found hotels very crowded as in Los Angeles and Pasadena, and travel on the part of tourists and other pleasure seekers very heavy. Everything appeared to be conducted in a very orderly manner however, although money was being spent lavishly.

Doty L. Anderson of 118 North Louise street, attended the evangelistic meeting at the Fifth street Nazarene Mission in Los Angeles Wednesday evening.

Harry Emmies of the California Orio Orchestra, will play at South Pasadena for the coming summer months. Mr. Emmies is well known in Glendale.

E. H. Quinn, private secretary for the chief engineer of the Santa Fe system, was a dinner guest recently of H. R. Sibley of 718 South Brand boulevard.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS

died at Valladolid, May 20, 1506, where he was buried, but his bones were removed first to Seville, 1513, then to Santo Domingo, in Hispaniola, 1513, and although this is disputed by Santo Domingo, to the Cathedral in Havana, 1796. After the Spanish-American war the casket was taken back to Seville.

Many a man's so-called independence is nothing but contrariness.

RESOLUTION NO. 1815

A RESOLUTION PROPOSING CERTAIN AMENDMENTS TO THE CHARTER OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE:

SECTION 1. That said Council hereby proposes to the qualified electors of the City of Glendale six amendments to the Charter of said City to be voted on at the general municipal election to be held in said City on the 10th day of April, 1923, which amendments shall read as follows:

CHARTER AMENDMENT NO. 1

A. That Section 10 of Article VI of said Charter be amended to read as follows:

SECTION 10. PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS AND REVOLVING FUND THEREFOR:

1. The Council may order the construction, reconstruction and repair of any and all kinds of public work and improvements (which shall include the acquisition, construction, reconstruction, extension, maintenance and repair of any public utility owned or proposed to be acquired by said City, and of the pipes, wires, conduits and other appliances and appurtenances for the operation thereof, and the furnishing of illuminating agent for lighting streets and other public places; but this enumeration shall not be deemed exclusive of any and all other kinds of work and improvements) in, upon; under and over public streets, avenues, boulevards, courts, ways, lanes, alleys and other public places and property and rights of way owned by the City of Glendale, either inside or outside of the boundaries of said city, and the payment of the cost thereof, either wholly or partly, by the proceeds of special assessments, and may, by ordinance, adopt a system or systems of procedure to be followed for that purpose. The Council may so adopt the same or different systems of procedure for different items or kinds of said work and improvements, and may adopt alternate systems of procedure for any one or more items or kinds of said work and improvements. The Council shall have power in any such system of procedure to provide for any or all of the following:

The doing of said work or improvements either by letting out of contracts or by the City without contract by the direct employment of labor and purchase of materials under the direction of such officer or employee of the City as the Council may designate, or by both of such methods; the establishment and change of the grades at which such work and improvements are to be done; the payment of the costs and expenses of such work and improvements, including all incidental costs and expenses and any damages to private property occasioned thereby, wholly by special assessments levied upon the property benefited thereby or partly by such special assessments and partly from the City Treasury from such fund as the Council may designate, subject to the limitations of this Charter as to the incurring of indebtedness; making such assessments a first lien on the property assessed paramount to all other liens except state, county and municipal taxes and special assessments previously levied thereon; the exclusion from any assessment of property owned by any public corporation or governmental agency and in use in the performance of, any public function and the assessment of the cost of such work and improvements upon the remaining property benefited thereby; making all such assessments payable in one payment at such time as the Council may designate, or in one or more deferred installments bearing interest, or in either method at the option of the property owners expressed in such a manner as the Council may determine; issuing interest bearing bonds, secured by or representing such assessments or deferred installments thereof; collecting and enforcing such assessments or bonds by sale of the property assessed, by action to foreclose the same, or in any other suitable manner; the guaranty by the City of such bonds so issued or the advancing by the City of the funds necessary to pay such bonds in case of delinquency in payment of installments of such assessments or any of them; any other matters the Council may deem proper.

Assessments made under authority hereof shall be levied upon property in districts benefited by the said work and improvements, either in proportion to the assessed value of the property or according to the benefits derived by such property from said work and improvements, or in such other manner as the Council may determine. When provision is made for the guaranty of any bonds by the City or for the advancement of funds to pay the delinquent installments of any assessments, the Council shall annually levy such taxes, not exceeding one-tenth of one per cent of the assessed value of the property in the City in any one year, as may be necessary to raise sufficient funds for that purpose in addition to the tax levy for ordinary municipal taxes. No ordinance passed under authority hereof shall prevent the Council from proceeding under General Laws of the State of California for any of the purposes aforesaid. Any public improvements not herein mentioned may be done and the assessments therefor may be levied and enforced in conformity with and under the authority of General Laws of the State of California.

2. The Council may authorize any officer of the City to bid for and contract in the name of the City of Glendale to do by sub-contract any part of any public work and improvement aforesaid when the same is let by contract to a contractor other than the City.

3. Whenever any work is done by the City under the provisions of this Section, the provisions of Section 9 of Article VI of this Charter shall not apply to the purchase of materials therefor; and the Council may, by resolution, authorize the employment of such laborers and other employees as may be necesary therefor in addition to the regular employees of the City.

Before the City shall undertake or contract to do any work under this Section, an estimate shall be made by the officer or employee in charge, or to be in charge, thereof for the City of the expenses to be incurred thereby and no such work shall be undertaken or contracted for by the City unless the Controller shall first certify that there are funds available to meet such estimated expenses, or that such funds have been provided by tax levy or otherwise and will be available within the current fiscal year, or within the succeeding fiscal year if the officer or employee abovementioned shall certify that the expenses will not be incurred until such succeeding fiscal year; provided, that no omission of or defect in any such estimate or certificate shall affect the right of the City to collect the contract price of any such work or to enforce any assessments or bonds issued for the cost thereof.

4. The Council may, by special taxes levied or by bonds issued in conformity to the provisions of this Charter, create or increase a revolving fund to be used in financing the cost of work done by the City under the provisions of this section. The specification of the purpose to create such a revolving fund, or to increase the amount thereof, shall be a sufficient statement of the purpose or improvement for which any such tax is to be levied or any such bonds are to be issued, in any proceeding to submit the levy of such tax or the issuance of such bonds to the qualified voters of the City. When any work has been paid for out of such revolving fund, the price received by the City therefor shall be paid into and become a part of such revolving fund, and the principal and interest of any assessments and bonds received therefor shall, upon payment thereof, be placed in and become a part of such revolving fund; provided, that any profits made by the City from the doing of such work and any interest received on any assessment or bonds may, by order of the Council, be used to pay the principal or interest of any City bond issue by which such revolving fund is created or increased; and provided further, that the Council may, from time to time, sell at such price and on such terms as it deems best any assessment or bonds which may be received by the City for or on account of the work done by the City, the proceeds of such sale to be placed in such revolving fund.

B. That Section 6 of Article XXIII of said Charter be amended to read as follows:

SECTION 6. The Council may, by Ordinance, adopt a procedure for the removal of dirt, rubbish, weeds and other rank growths and materials which may injure or endanger neighboring property or the health or the welfare of the inhabitants of the vicinity from buildings, lots and grounds and the sidewalks opposite thereto and for making and entorcing assessments against property benefited or affected thereby, or from which said removal is made, for the cost of such improvements or removal, and may make such assessments a lien on such property superior to all other claims or liens thereon, except state, county and municipal taxes and previous assessments levied by authority of the City, but no such ordinance shall prevent the Council from proceeding under the General Laws for said purposes.

CHARTER AMENDMENT NO. 2

That Section 3 of Article IV of said Charter is hereby amended to read as follows:

SECTION 3: The members of the Council shall each be paid Ten ($10.00) Dollars for each meeting of the Council attended, but not exceeding six (6) meetings in each month. The Library Trustees and the Board of Education shall serve without compensation. All other officers, assistants, deputies, clerks and employees shall, except as otherwise provided in this Charter, receive such compensation as the Council may from time to time determine by ordinance; provided, however, that the Council may fix a maximum, or a maximum and a minimum, compensation and authorize the City Manager to determine the amounts of said compensation, not exceeding such maximum and not less than such minimum, if any; and provided further, that notwithstanding the provisions of Section 1 of this Article, the Council may, by resolution, provide for the temporary employment of assistants, deputies, clerks and employees and fix the compensation to be paid to them, but such temporary positions shall not continue for more than six (6) months, nor shall any person remain in the employment of the City under a temporary appointment or employment for more than six (6) months in any period of one year.

CHARTER AMENDMENT NO. 3

A. That Section 3 of Article XI of said Charter be amended to read as follows:

SECTION 3. PRESENTATION OF DEMANDS:

All demands against the City shall, before being paid, be presented to and approved by the proper Board, Commission or Officer, as herein provided. Demands against the library fund shall be presented to the Board of Library Trustees; demands against funds in the control of the Board of Education shall be presented to the Board of Education; demands for which no appropriation has been made shall be presented to the Council; and all other demands shall be presented to the City Manager; provided, that any person dissatisfied with the refusal of the City Manager to approve any demand, in whole or in part, may present the same to the Council, and the approval of such demand by the Council shall have the same effect as its approval by the City Manager; and provided further, that if the Council shall provide for a Park, Playground and Recreation Center Commission, a Social Service Commission, or a City Planning Commission, it may make provision for the presentation to and approval by any such Commission of demands for liabilities incurred by it. The Council may provide for a Revolving Petty Cash Fund of not more than Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars for General Budget expenditures and for a Revolving Petty Cash Fund of not more than Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars for expenditures of the Public Service Department, to be paid to the City Manager or such other officer as the Council may designate and used by him for payment in cash of expenditures provided for in the budgets that cannot conveniently be paid otherwise. The City Manager, or other officer in charge thereof, shall account to the Council for all payments made by him out of either of said funds when making demand for replenishment of the same and at such other times as the Council may require, and they shall thereupon be charged against the proper appropriations.

B. That Section 4 of Article XI of said Charter be amended to read as follows:

SECTION 4. WARRANTS ON TREASURY:

All demands approved by the proper board, commission or officer shall be presented to the City Controller, who shall examine the same; and if the amount thereof is legally due and there remains on his books an unexhausted balance of an appropriation against which the same may be charged, he shall approve such demand and draw and sign his warrant on the Treasurer therefor, payable out of the proper fund. Objections of the Controller to any demand may be overruled by the Council, and the Controller shall thereupon draw his warrant as directed by the Council. Such warrants, when presented to the Treasurer, shall be paid by him out of the fund therein designated, if there be sufficient money in such fund for that purpose. A warrant not paid for lack of funds shall be registered, and all registered warrants shall be paid in the order of registration when funds are available therefor. The Treasurer shall pay municipal or other bonds payable out of funds in the Treasury on presentation and surrender of the proper bonds or coupons, without approval or any body or officer and without any warrant from the Controller therefor. The Council may make further regulations by ordinance regarding the presentation, approval and payment of demands against the City.

CHARTER AMENDMENT NO. 4

A. That Section 6 of Article VI of said Charter be amended to read as follows:

SECTION 6. ORDINANCES:

The enacting clause of every ordinance passed by the Council shall be: "Be it ordained by the Council of the City of Glendale." The enacting clause of every ordinance initiated by the people shall be: "Be it ordained by the People of the City of Glendale." A vote on the final passage of any ordinance, or any vote on any appropriation, must be taken only at a regular or adjournel regular meeting, and no ordinance shall be finally passed within two days of the date of the meeting at which it is introduced; provided, that amendments relative to the subject or subjects or any proposed ordinance may be made when it is brought up for final passage; and provided further, that in case of an extraordinary epidemic or any disaster such as flood, fire or earthquake requiring immediate action on the part of any public authorities, an emergency ordinance may be introduced and passed at either a regular or a special meeting without any intervention of time between its introduction and final passage. Every ordinance must be signed by the Mayor, attested by the Clerk and published once in the official newspaper. Any ordinance granting any franchise or privilege shall be published at the expense of the applicant therefor.

B. That Section 7 of Article VI of said Charter be amended to read as follows:

SECTION 7. WHEN ORDINANCE GOES INTO EFFECT:

Except as herein provided, no Penal Ordinance, or measure passed by the Council granting any franchise or privilege, shall go into effect in less than thirty (30) days after its final passage. All other ordinances, and any Penal Ordinance declared by the Council to be necessary as an emergency measure for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, containing a statement of the reasons for its urgency and passed by a four-fifths (4-5) vote of the whole Council, may go into effect at the will of the Council.

CHARTER AMENDMENT NO. 5

That Section 13 of Article VI of said Charter be amended to read as follows:

SECTION 13. VACANCIES IN ELECTIVE OFFICES:

Any member of the Council who is absent from all meetings thereof for two (2) consecutive months, unless excused by the Council, shall forfeit his seat. Any vacancy occurring in the Council shall be filled by a majority vote of the remaining members of the Council. Any vacancy occurring in the Board of Education shall be filled by a majority vote of the remaining members of the Board or Education. Any vacancy occurring in any other elective office shall be filled by a majority vote of the whole Council. The person appointed to fill a vacancy in any elective office shall serve until his successor is elected and qualified; provided, that where the term of the office to which such person is appointed expires on the first Monday following the next General Municipal Election to be held after the occurring of the vacancy, such person shall serve for the remainder of the unexpired term. Except as herein provided, the successor of any person appointed to fill a vacancy in an elective office shall be elected at the next General Municipal Election held after the occurring of the vacancy, provided there is sufficient time after the occurring of the vacancy to nominate and elect said successor at said next General Municipal Election; and if there is not sufficient time so to do, such person, so appointed, shall hold for the remainder of the unexpired term.

CHARTER AMENDMENT NO. 6

That Section 1 of Article VIII of said Charter be amended to read as follows:

SECTION 1. The City Attorney shall, at the time of his appointment, be a qualified elector of the City and an attorney duly admitted to practice law in the State of California, and shall have been actually engaged in the practice of law in this state for a period of at least four years next before his appointment. He shall appoint and remove all such deputies and assistants as the Council may authorize, subject to the approval of the Council.

SECTION 2. The City Clerk is hereby directed to publish this Resolution in full including the foregoing amendments by one insertion in the Glendale Daily Press, the official newspaper of the City of Glendale, within fifteen days from the passage hereof, and to cause a sufficient number of copies of said proposed amendments to be printed in convenient pamphlet form and kept in his office for public distribution, and to distribute said copies to any and all persons applying therefor, and said Clerk is further directed to publish in said Glendale Daily Press, a newspaper of general circulation, published in said City, until the said date fixed for said election, notices that said printed copies of said proposed amendments may be had upon application therefor at the office of said City Clerk.

PENDROY'S NEW STOCKS NOW ARRIVING

New stock from New York which was purchased by Mrs. Earl Pendroy and which is now arriving daily and is on display in the second floor salesroom, shows that three-quarter length capes and coats are leading, the coats having blouse backs and being elaborately trimmed with braid, stitching and fur. Fur and stitching also features the capes, and both forms of wrap range through black, blue and toast brown, the popular materials being "Marvella" and the lustrous "Marline."

The newest suits are in three pieces, blouse of silk in paisley patterns to match the color of the Russian jacket and skirt. Mode shade is fashion's latest offering, a beautiful soft tint approximating deer skin. The jackets are heavily embroidered, and the skirts are made with a panel on one side which terminates in a point extending below the hem line. The panels are likewise embroidered to match the jackets.

Consignments of sport dresses for afternoon and evening wear will soon be shown. They are in bright shades of all colors, green predominating and Canton crepe appears to be the choice in material.

FASHION CENTER HAS WONDERFUL BARGAINS

Mr. McKinnon, buyer for the Fashion Center on South Brand boulevard, says that upon the response of the Glendale buying public to the bargains offered in his three-day sale of gowns at $15 each, will depend his policy with regard to future offerings of like magnitude.

For this sale he purchased in New York, he says, 300 afternoon and evening dresses and sport costumes, some of which cost him from $25 to $29, each. He did not pay so much attention to the price or the material as he did to the style and general attractiveness of the model, knowing that women want smart effects rather than durable materials in such gowns. He averaged the price and placed it at $15 to see how it would go. Next week the same gowns will be priced at 25 to 50 per cent more, he says.

He realizes that he is new in Glendale and must feel his way and that is what he is doing in this sale, he declares. They are beautiful little gowns and he will feel much disappointed if the returns of the week fail to show that they have been properly appreciated by discriminating local shoppers.

NOVEL SUITS FROM PARIS FOR YOUNGSTERS

At the left is shown a short-panted velvet suit, with crepe de chine collar. The other is a serviceable play-time garment of linen.

STRAW HATS ARE BEGINNING TO APPEAR

NEW YORK, Feb. 2[illegible] (United Press).—Women's hats are the heralds of spring. Despite the weather prophet, the groundhog, they are out in all their glory.

Men have a straw hat day, when they throw away the winter felts for the summer straws. They wait calmly for this day and then blossom out in unison. Women are not content to even wait for the groundhog to proclaim straw hat weather and even as early as January, many of them turn out in straw affairs trimmed in rosebuds.

February demands the between-season bonnet and at present the winter hats are beginning to look decidedly passe.

The early season hats this year are invariably poke-shaped, fitting close to the head and with scarcely any brim. They are more youthful than any shapes we have had in some time and should be becoming to most any type of face if properly trimmed. They may be widened with huge ribbon bows, heightened with feathers or broadened with side clusters of ribbon rosettes.

The most youthful effect for the poke is the side trim of shirred ribbon rosettes placed flatly at the sides of the bonnet. These rosettes may be made of plain ribbon, robbon with silver or gold edges, metal ribbon or narrow black lace. The Parisian whim of the moment is to have a small cluster of bright flower buds in the center of the rosette. Round medallions of pearl beads are also popular as a center for gold or silver metal ribbon rosettes. Where pearls and metal ribbons are used, more of an evening bonnet effect is obtained.

Evening affairs at present are certainly demanding lace both for gowns and hats. Nothing could be prettier for black lace dinner gown than the large black hat that is trimmed with exquisite black lace. There is nothing which softens the face as does lace. On large hats of horsehair straw or tulle, there is often just a sweep of wide lace about the crown which ends in long streamers at one side. Sometimes one streamer is long enough to be wound about the throat as a scarf. This makes an excellent thing for resturant wear, with the low-necked dinner gown.

On the small poke bonnets, black lace may be used in veil effect extending over the narrow brim and ending in a huge wired bow at one side.

Nothing could be more appropriate for the matron who doesn't care for the evening slippers of colorful brocades or gold or silver than the black satin slippers, embroidered in silver with silver heels. It is true that black slippers make the foot appear less conspicuous, but unless black is brightened up a bit it passes unnoticed among this season's footgear. The silver heel adds a novel touch to the black shoe and can be matched with silver hose.

The newest slips designed to be worn under the one-piece frocks are made of the same color as the frock and are cut on form-fitting lines. The shirred skirt attached to a princess waist which was popular last season has been discarded, because many of the dresses were so transparent that the waistline of the petticoat showed through the gown, giving an untidy effect.

Long kid gloves have silk ribbon fringe extending along the rear seam from waist to top of the glove. White gloves have white ribbon fringe three inches wide or black and white fringe to correspond with the black stitching on the glove. Fawn colored gloves have fawn colored fringe. One can easily purchase this silk ribbon fringe by the yard and sew it on a plain pair of gloves.

TO WASH SHIELDS

so that they will last a while, use lukewarm soapy water and a teaspoonful of baking soda. Do not rub the soap directly into the shields, but on a small brush and brush both sides of the shield vigorously with the warm water. Rinse in water of the same temperature.

COTTON FABRIC FROCKS

As charming as they are new are frocks of the Rodier cotton fabrics, while colored embroideries in odd and lovely patterns are used with telling effect as decorations.

BEAUTY OF HOMES IS OBJECTIVE OF MR. WILLIAMS

Proprietor of Williams Store Makes Hobby of Drapery

Mr. Williams, of Glendale, who is the George E. Williams of the Williams store, at 103 North Brand boulevard, has been studying and catering to the needs of Glendale for some time and has realized the big field it offers for a trade in beautiful drapery materials.

No city in the country has exceeded Glendale in percent of increase in population and the beautiful thing about statistics of this kind, is that the increase represents not a floating population of renters but home-owners who either bought houses already built, or purchased real estate and proceeded to build. All these homes have been attractive and they have called for beautiful furnishings, not necessarily the most costly. It is this class of trade that Mr. Williams had in mind when he purchased the fine stock of beautiful curtain and drapery goods to be seen at his establishment.

He is also equipped to manufacture the curtains if desired and will take all the responsibility of measuring windows and doors, and estimating the material required, free of charge, that for making to be nominal. Any woman who has undertaken to equip a new home with curtains knows what a burden is lifted from her shoulders when such service is rendered.

Mr. William has been in the dry-goods business for many years, and this particular line has always appealed to his aesthetic taste. He enjoys it and feels when he has helped to make a home beautiful he has rendered a service to the community. In other words he experiences the satisfaction of an artist in the result.

Mr Williams does not handle inferior goods but on the other hand he believes that high cost does not necessarily mean high value. Sometimes the same effect may be achieved satisfactorily by the use of materials of lower values. And so he caters to the average home-maker and carries a big enough variety to fit all needs and tastes.

He believes in better homes and that it is a duty parents owe their children and their friends to make their homes represent all the beauty that good taste and judicious expenditures can compass. He is willing to help.

SMART HATS

The newest thing in millinery is a hat of satin whose only trimming consists of a veil delicately embroidered in metal thread gracefully draped over the crown. A black hat will have a veil of black and silver and a brown hat will have one of brown, with fine traceries of gold.

Truths in Epigram

I think the first virtue is to restrain the tongue. —Cato.

One may be a lamb in private wrongs, but in hearing general affronts to goodness, they are asses which are not lions.—Thomas Fuller.

NO CONCERN OF AMERICA'S

The Near East relief expended upon the Smyrna emergency the sum of $3,296,677.24. The continuing emergency will necessitate the expenditure of at least $2,100,000 more by July next. In the ministration of the fund the services of many Americans were required, in instances at the risk of life. It was necessary to take prospective victims from in front of Turkish bayonets. All the money available, and that to be available, is of American origin. It consists of voluntary donations.

Yet there still are Americans who aver that conditions in Europe are no concern of America's. Let the other continent wrack itself to bits by the turmoil of war, and say no pacific word indicative of interest in the world catastrophe; such is the policy they announce, perhaps without a thought of the cold-blooded selfishness of it. Certainly they have no conception of the peril in which such course would involve even that portion of civilization in which they fancy themselves secure.

Doubtless a part of the duty of a nation so situated as the United States is to safeguard itself, maintaining its prosperity and strength. In this manner it would be able to exercise an influence, and its suggestion would have weight. It also would be setting a pattern of industry that it were well for peoples across the sea to follow, casting aside their own policy of destructiveness. But it cannot hold itself wholly aloof. It is not doing so save in theory. The millions in cash it has sent to the Near East, and the brave men and women representing it there, show that it is alive to the needs of Europe. But as to how to induce a better state of things over there, the method of restoring war-worn powers to reason, these are matters that wisdom has not been able to solve. This does not mean that the task is to be abandoned.

THE FOREIGN LECTURER

Hillaire Belloc is the latest Englishman to arrive in this country with a message to be delivered from the rostrum at a reasonable admission fee. It is not to be assumed that Belloc is inspired by the fee, and yet a lecturer must live. An astonishing number live well because of the courtesy, and possibly the curiosity of the American public. Mr. Belloc enjoys the hearty detestation of G. B. Shaw, a fact that tends to raise him in the esteem of the thoughtful.

Belloc comes with the purpose of pointing out the dangers of civilization. Among these he cites the decay of dogmatic religion, the unrest of Islam, and the quarrels between the social classes of the world. It is doubtful, however, that, as he points, he will call attention to a single fact of which fairly intelligent folk are not aware, and in contemplation of which they have not been stirred to a deep concern. That which is needed now is not the mere citation of the obvious, but something in the nature of a remedy. If Mr. Belloc brings a remedy, he will be thrice welcome. However, having such a remedy, the application of it to his habitual environment, apparently overlooked by him, could not have been amiss.

The asserted decay of dogmatic religion does not seem fully sustained by the words of the speaker himself, for in the next breath he tells how religions are as potent as nationalities in Europe, and the manner in which they are cutting across national lines. Skepticism has gone out, in great measure, in France. As the absence of skepticism argues the presence of religious form, the evidence of the decay he deprecates, fails to stand out clearly.

However, Belloc will tell his own story as often as the financial urge shall suggest. If only he refrain from taking that superior attitude so common with his kind, he will be listened to respectfully.

FORD LOSES THE SHOALS

The fact that the effort of Henry Ford to get Muscle Shoals has failed will not greatly concern the people of this country on account of its effect on the bidder. There is a feeling that Ford will get along somehow. The interest of the public was not as to the success of an individual, but as to its own success. Muscle Shoals represented a great utility. Developed to its utmost, its operation would have a benign effect on the industry of the country. For one thing, it assured a supply of cheap fertilizer, something that the agriculturalist is needing more and more. Moreover the government had put into Muscle Shoals many millions of the peoples' money. The desire to see this money taken out, in part, or rendered profitable, was wholly natural.

Ford made the single bid that seemed definite and tangible. The rejection of his proffer does not mean, necessarily, that the chance will go to some other bidder. The fear is that the enterprise will halt just at the stage it has reached, its potentialities never demonstrated, and the millions put into it wasted. There has been talk that the government might go ahead with the work, but it has been vague, and with no plan behind it. The feeling was that Ford could make something out of the Muscle Shoals project, for himself and for the public, and that if not permitted to do so, the millions already sunk there were to stay buried.

Few tombs are being constructed now on such a plan that there could be much profit in looting them three thousand years hence. Still, the scientists of the coming day doubtless will be a curious lot, too, and will be likely to rattle the dry bones, less in quest of jewels and junk, than of information concerning the twentieth century.

Lots of things he doesn't want come to the man who is impatient.

NOT AIMED AT SLANG

"Slang Users Get Vacation for One Week" is the headline by which one paper announces the coming of a week devoted to promoting employment of proper English. Below is added: "'Have Went' and 'I Seen' Given Seven Day Rest."

Of course slang is not always desirable. Nevertheless, the slang word of today becomes respectable, and incorporated into the language tomorrow. Much slang is incisive, pertinent, and lends an emphasis not to be had in any other way. Moreover, a slang phrase is applied to some new condition for which a term of recognized stability is lacking.

There are occasions in which slang would be wholly out of place and sedulously avoided by any speaker of good taste. On the contrary, there are times when the demand for slang is apparent. Indulgence in it does not argue the inability of the speaker to confine himself to a plane of absolute correctness if such be his wish. Therefore slang is hardly to be considered in relation to good English. It is a matter quite apart. It may indicate, not ignorance, but a fine perspicacity that merely anticipates the next edition of the unabridged dictionary.

"Have went" or "Have saw" are plain abominations, inexcusable and offensive. They are visible tokens of intellectual slouchiness and deserve rebuke. The "Better English" week would do well to devote itself to suppression of them and their kind, and the purpose being sufficient to engage all the energies, to let slang alone for the nonce.

One of the submarines that was to have accompanied the fleet to Panama had to beat back to harbor crippled and almost helpless. The reason was that the government will not appropriate enough money to take care of the navy.

Foolishness—trying to get a small boy to work while a brass band is passing.

Poets are born—and there's no remedy.

THE SEED CATALOGUE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I have just been all stirred up because somebody has sent me a seed catalogue.

I haven't any garden nor any place to put one if I had it, but I never get over being excited by a seed catalogue.

DR. FRANK CRANE

It calls to mind the days when I fussed around in the dirt and raised roses and heliotropes and gladioli and cabbages. Indeed there is a classic legend in my family to the effect that I was discovered one dewy morning out in the garden with big rubber boots and wearing a tall silk hat, cultivating my plants. This is one of those stories it does no good to deny.

The catalogue in question was sent me by Luther Burbank and I am strongly tempted to buy hundreds and hundreds of dollars' worth of seeds and bulbs, but having great strength of character, I shall not.

However, I can do some royal mind gardening.

For instance, here is a new asparagus. The eloquence of the cataloguist is almost equal to that of the man who writes fashions for men in the theater catalogues, and when he writes, "If any more delicious vegetable than crisp, well-grown asparagus has been invented, tell us about it," I am duly thrilled.

Then there are artichokes, "new artichokes which often produce on good soil lavender-blue flowers three to four feet in circumference." Oh, boy!

There are pictures of early sweet corn, better than golden bantam. Also of a new kind of popcorn.

My mouth waters looking at the pictures of a huge early tomato, and a new hybrid cucumber, and an account of the new sunberry and thornless blackberry and Big Boston lettuce and Hollow Crown parsnips and Mountain Spinach and "early long scarlet short-top radish," which seems to be the long and short of it.

Besides this there are flower seeds—amaranthus, called "molten fire," of which the eloquent catalogue maker says that they "open like gigantic dahlias of a surpassingly brilliant, iridescent, fiery, rosy crimson, increasing in size and abundance until the whole plant is illuminated with huge poinsettia-like tufts of flaming fire which can be seen for half a mile."

Besides this there are our old friends, the antirrhinum, or snapdragon, and aquilegia in all colors, and gladioli.

And here let me pause and devote an entire paragraph to the gladiolus, absolutely the most scrumptious of all flowers, indeed, the scrumptuosity of scrumptuousness, if you know what I mean.

And Shasta daisies and carnations and foxgloves and marigolds and sweet peas and coreopsis and dahlias and cosmos and verbenas and morning glories and—oh, well, what's the use?

I am a cliff dweller and live in a city canyon. I look out of the window of my flat and see nothing but paved streets and brick pavements; at least I could see them if they were not covered with snow and slush. Unfortunately, I must do my gardening at night when I am asleep.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

The world is alive.
It is not a dead thing.
The universe is alive.
There is power, motion, light, color, activity.
Life is in activity.

We are living things or beings in a living world or universe.

So we have to take particular account of life.

Not so much of death, except that we may escape it or avoid it before the time for it.

* * *

There is nothing unnatural about death.

It is the incident of the finished life.

It is the gate out of which we pass when the journey is ended.

Death before life has been lived is a pitiable thing.

Death when the journey of life has been completed is a natural thing, a proper thing, a thing not to be feared or hated or pitied.

As living things we ought to learn life.
Its secrets.
Its uses.
Its purposes.
And the purpose of each life is to make it possible for other lives to be lived with more of happiness, health, joy, opportunity.

* * *

Education is for life.
Education fits us for life and its purposes.
That is the reason for education.
Religion is for life.
It is to fill life with courage and purpose.
To make it gentle and kindly and truthful and sincere.
Why?
That other lives may be lifted and illuminated.

* * *

Living beings in a living world.
That is what we are.
We may search for ancient tombs.
We may discover monarchs who lived thirty centuries ago.
Not that we may learn that they died.
Not that we may learn how they died.
Or why they died.
We make these researches in order that we may learn how they lived.
Possibly some discovery may enable us to live better.

Thoughts of death are out of place in busy life, except as inevitable speculations.

Emerson spoke of one as "too busy with the crowded hour to fear to live or die."

Nobody who was busy with some useful thing ever gave much thought about dying.

But he gave a lot of thought to living.

* * *

It is not to make light of death.

Death before time is a sad and sorrowful thing.

But life is a great and beautiful thing.
With its duties.
With its sorrows.
With its struggles.
And with its rewards and compensations.

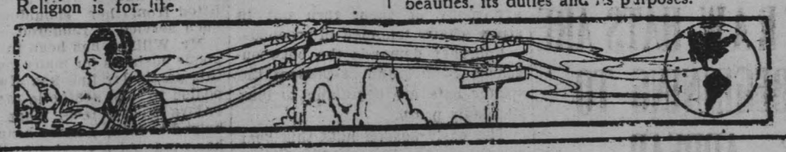
And if we devote ourselves truly to the purposes of life we shall have no fear of death.

For we shall be too busy with life and its beauties, its duties and its purposes.



Songs of the Poets

Cuivre Dore—By Adelaide Manola Hughes in The Bookman

I want Crimson and Purple,
I want crash of Sound in curious cadence,
And strange language in my ears;
I want to inhale the unknown;
But I am tied to the Pots and Pans of Life.

I want to hunt treasures in the Bazaars of Stamboul.
I want to ride into the blue of the Kashmir mountains.
I want to sail in a junk around the great sea wall of China;
But behind a barricade of duty,
I live in Walla Falls.

I want to own a worm-eaten Italian carved-wood desk
Of the Sixteenth Century.
But I have a new golden-oak wood writing-table
Made in Michigan.
I want an inlaid tulip-wood commode
Made in the Louis XV day,
"Mounted in cuivre dore, with rocaille handles,
Serpentine front, escutcheon knees and toes
Topped in white marble veined in grey."
I have a bird's-eye maple one
With shiny brass handles
And a rack for towels.

I want to travel far and wide
I want to meet the Unexpected
To see the trees, flowers, and birds, that I have never seen.

I shall live here always
At Walla Falls—
Always!
For I shall never have the things I cannot have.
But I can read about them.

And dream of them

And—I can say, what I want!

THE LAW AND THE LAWYERS

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

If the legislators at Sacramento will listen to the collective voice of the Los Angeles Bar association we will soon have a legal code so neatly mended that it can stand the wear and tear of regular use in the interest of the average citizen.

The ten proposals of the Bar association should interest us all, they will make legal procedure more elastic and insure quickly a greater number of convictions for crime.

However, there is one proposal that, in the name of women, I should like to suggest. It is this: that a restitution bill be passed by the legislature or placed on the books by initiative petition.

The lawyers have wisely suggested a bill providing that the minimum value of stolen property that may constitute grand larceny be raised from the present value of $50 to $200. Now if to that we can add some provision that will enable the chap guilty of petit larceny to work and return the value of the stolen goods to his victim, it seems to me we will have our feet on the straight road to progress.

When all is said and done, men and women steal for the same reason that they gamble, to get possessions without laboring for them. If, then, we make it unprofitable to steal, the industry of annexing the other man's goods will speedily die. And what is more discouraging to an enterprising thief than to be compelled to remain behind bars or cough up the price of his stealage?

This might work equally well in the case of grand larceny, but for the fact that most men who steal in huge amounts either do so because they are in debt or because they have a chance to make a get away with their goods. In either case restitution would be difficult or at least impractical.

But in the case of the petty thief restitution would be possible, it would be desirable because the victim of the theft would have something substantial instead of being compelled to solace himself with an empty sense of revenge as at present.

And finally, the boy who began theft in a small way would, through being repeatedly made to pay back, come to a practical understanding of the unprofitableness of dishonesty. How about it, gentlemen of the bar?

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

CHILD'S GOOD WORK

[Fitchburg Sentinel]

As we see it, Mr. Child has performed an exceedingly difficult task at Lausanne without a mistake, and it is the more remarkable because of the fact that he has had so little experience in diplomatic dealings with European nations. Appointed ambassador to Italy, he was sent by the state department to Lausanne to represent the United States as an observer of the proceedings of the conference, thereby being plunged at once into the cauldron of European intrigues and political confusions, and he has made the influence of the United States felt.

ON HIS WAY TO HERRIN

[Louisville Courier Journal]

This story is now going the rounds:

Into a Texas town a stranger came riding on a lion, beating his ferocious charger with a live rattlesnake. He entered a drug store and demanded an ounce of carbolic acid mixed with an ounce of iodine.

When the draught was handed him he drank it down and called for another.

As he was leaving the store a native accosted him.

"Say, stranger, where you from?"

"I come from Mer Rouge, La., but it was too darned rough for me down there."

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Almost any time now may come the report that the Panama canal has been atttacked and taken by a hostile fleet. Or the forces at the isthmus may make such a brave resistance as to drive the ships scurrying to the safety of the sea. There is no predicting the outcome of a sham battle. Of course the decision must rest on technicalities, as when two swordsmen, their points tipped with charred cork, win or lose by the court of smudges imparted.

HENRY JAMES

Nevertheless, while it lasts, a sham battle is a terrifically real affair. The men engaged enter into the spirit of it as though they fought with shotted guns. They are for the time actors, and a good actor becomes more than an imitation of the character he portrays, being the actual character in every emotion that thrills him.

Doubtless naval men will draw conclusions from the outcome of this engagement as to what would have happened had an enemy fleet stolen in under a screen of smoke, and sought to capture the canal or put it out of busines.

Meanwhile the American battle fleet is on its way, with radio sealed, creeping down the coast with all the stealth of an alien armada. And sorry to say, now and then, some craft falls out of line and limps homeward, because the appropriation for keeping the navy in order has been niggardly.

Spring is coming. The fact is not so important in southern California as elsewhere. Here it does not mean emergence from a period of frost and discomfort. There has been no part of winter in which flowers were not blooming in the open, birds singing blithely, and lawns clad in their gay green. Still, when the calendar shows that spring is near, the fact is admitted, and, largely from force of old-time habit, is hailed.

One sign of spring is the poetry that burbles from the soul of genius. One man, probably inspired by the sight of a robin tentatively exploring, got this off his chest:

On the earth and in the air,
All around us everywhere,
Sun is shining, skies are clear—
Spring is here, Spring is here.

Just like that. Well, in welcoming spring, one must take the poetry of the season with the rest. It isn't such a much, as a rule, but its a sign of happiness and a forbearing editor.

For the violent receipt of a black eye a man has just been awarded $100 by the court. Probably this was bestowed rather as a reward for honesty than because of damage and suffering.

Most men at some time of life have experienced the necessity of carrying about with them a bruised and discolored lamp. They have never met with sympathy, but the merry ha ha has been their portion. This was because of the fantastic lies they told about the way they acquired the decoration. Not one would admit that he had employed the organ of vision to stop a hostile fist. Nothing like that. Some of them had tripped over the furniture while getting the baby its bottle. Others had run into the edge of an open door. For a hammer to fly off had been a frequent experience. A few advanced the theory of collision with a clothesline. But did a brave one stand forth with the simple explanation "Bill Jones socked me one?" Not in a single instance.

Comes along an individual of different type. He admits that he was hit in the eye by a bunch of knuckles, and admitting this, stamps himself as so honest and rare as to be entitled to a prize.

Sterilization of feeble minded has been carried on with success in a public institution of Wisconsin. In some cases the patients have been paroled after the operation.

At every mention of a course deemed so radical people are wont to shudder. They view with equanimity the privilege morons have of marrying and breeding. This privilege is so general that there are many parents who have less sense than inheres in the normal child of ten years.

For certain classes of offenders sterilization should be an inevitable penalty. Both as applied to the criminal and to the mentally deficient, it would be a reasonable form of protection to society.

The severest penalty ever meted out to an automobile thief was given by Judge Bledsoe the other day, when he sent the thief to prison for twelve years. It was to a federal prison, in which the parole system is not highly favored.

Had penalty approximating this been named earlier, in the industry of auto-stealing, the business never could have thrived as it has.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

I'm not so sure what was the moral of John H. Davis' story. He used to be an ambassador, you know, and there are distinct evidences of a movement to bring him into prominence for the democratic presidential nomination in the next race. But Doc Henneberry says that he thinks the moral is that one must be unafraid.

"Never say die," said Doc Henneberry, "Bluff the enemy to the last."

Anyhow, Mr. Davis said that when he was a young lawyer down in West Virginia he once had rather a poor case to defend. No one seemed to take a pronouncedly friendly interest in his client. There were persons who alleged that he should be hung on general principles. Mr. Davis felt this popular attitude very keenly, for he was a young man with his way to make in the world.

"He shore have got a tough lot of friends," men said on the streets.

The court shared this indisposition of the democracy for the Davis defendant. Mr. Davis had the case put off and put off, in the hope that the weather might turn warmer, until finally the court reprimanded him.

"I'll be in court tomorrow morning," said Mr. Davis. "Ready for trial."

"What with?" the court asked skeptically.

"Five witnesses to prove my client has been greatly wronged," said Mr. Davis. The court laughed harshly. Next morning when court opened the judge was on the bench and the bailiff in his seat, and the prosecuting attorney and Mr. Davis and the client and a stranger looking out of a window. And there was no one else in the court room. The court called Mr. Davis to stand up.

"Where are your five witnesses?" asked the judge angrily.

"There's one of 'em," said Mr. Davis, pointing to the man who was gazing out of the window.

"Where are the other four?" demanded the judge.

"The other four," said Mr. Davis, triumphantly, "are on the jury."

PROFESSIONALISM HINTED IN OLYMPICS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Olympic games in Paris could naturally be expected, but to find the boys at it so soon is rather a surprise.

English authorities are greatly agitated over the action of French authorities in reinstating Jean Vermeulen, the "world's champion professional distance runner."

The French Olympic officials replied to British criticism with statements that Vermeulen had not been named as a competitor in the Paris game.

The British came right back with—"And he'd better not be."

One of the London papers said if Vermeulen should be allowed to compete, that it would not be a surprise to see Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier in the final round for the heavyweight championship of the games.

If the American officials do not stop complaining when Joie Ray and some of the other athletes stop at a first class hotel on their trips and charge for it, the British can protest a lot of our stars and back it up with—"You said so yourself."

Specialists told him later that his trouble was caused by too much shaking hands.

Hoppe should make his manager, Benny Benjamin do more of it. That's what some of them are paid for.

WOODCHUCK PUP THAT PURRS IS NEW FREAK

OLEAN, N. Y. (United Press).—An animal that has the body of a woodchuck and the springy walk and purr of a cat, but which really is a dog, is valued at $125, according L. P. Evens of Bullis Mills, near here, the owner of the strange beast.

The freak has the body and short legs of a woodchuck and the soft fur, round head, the feet and voice of a cat. It is the only puppy of a litter of eight that was not normal. The mother of the odd animal is a cat fighter and woodchuck hunter. Evens said he had received numerous offers from zoos for the freak, but he thinks a cage is no place for a dog.

OBSERVATIONS

BY A GLENDALE OLD TIMER

The saddest sentence I ever read is that uttered by John Peerybingle in Dickens' "Cricket on the Hearth" when in reply to little Dot, his wife, who asks him to suspend judgment on her conduct till the clock has struck again, he says, "No hand can make the clock which will strike again for me the hours that are gone." For he believed that the dear child wife and mother of his babe, who had given herself gladly to him, homely, rugged and middle-aged as he was, had turned from him to a younger, comelier man. And the words of his renunciation of the hopes of a long life of happiness with the idolized little wife and the babes she should bring him, are among the noblest in all literature. Certainly all readers of this literary gem of "purest ray serene," rejoice in the happiness that follows so soon after poor old John's self effacement, even though the story is pure fiction. I do not believe there lives a man, woman or child who would not be better for having read this sweetest of all the wonderful stories that flowed from the gifted pen of the immortal Dickens.

It seems to me that the story of Damon and Pythias would make a wonderful screen production. If there is such already filmed, I have never heard of it, though a play has been written around it and successfully produced. The story and the play teach a sublime lesson of brotherly love and self-sacrifice which should be given forth to the world on every possible occasion. One splendid fraternal order, which but a few days ago celebrated its 59th anniversary, was founded on the story of these matchless friends. The incident occurred about 2500 years ago on a little island just off the coast of Sicily. On this tiny isle was located at that time a mighty city, Syracuse, of more than half a million people. It was a walled city and was ruled with an iron hand by Dionysius, who was a mighty man of war, feared by surrounding peoples for his prowess, both on land and on sea. One of his subjects, Damon, had been convicted, though unjustly, of an alleged crime, and sentenced to die. That he might see once more his wife and child and give them one last embrace, his dear friend Pythias eagerly offered to take his place in the prison cell and to die in his stead should he not return in time. Mounted on a swift steed, Damon rushed to his rural home, some distance from the big city. One short hour was all that he allotted himself and at its end, after fondest embraces of his loved ones he bade them an agonized farewell and rushed away to mount again his horse and hurry back to his fate. But his faithful slave, actuated by love of his master and mistress, had killed the horse, thinking to save his master from what he deemed a foolish sacrifice of life and his mistress from the agony of a life of widowhood. The distracted Damon, hurling the slave from him as he on bended knees confessed his deed and plead that his master relinquish all thoughts of returning to meet his doom, rushes frantically forth in a desperate attempt to make the journey on foot. A stray horse is encountered, however, and flinging himself on its back he speeds away. Meanwhile, Pythias, in his prison cell, has not the slightest misgiving. He knows his friend will return on time if it is humanly possible, but he hopes Damon may be delayed. Having no family ties himself, he would gladly yield up his life that his friend might be preserved to be the stay of his loved ones. So when he is led forth to execution, he calmly lays his head upon the block, and, with only the words, "'Tis sweet to die for those we love," he motions for the executioner to proceed. Just then a cloud of dust is seen in the far distance and Pythias' friends plead for delay, hoping it may mean that Damon is coming. The request is granted. Soon a man on foam-flecked, gasping steed comes into view, wildly waving his hands toward the group about the prisoner. Then Damon, springing from his dying horse, rushes forward and throws his arms about his beloved friend, Pythias. Dionysius is so struck with this display of friendship and deathless love that he pardons Damon. Such is the story and to my notion it would make a mighty fine screen play. The scenes would all have to be faked, however, for the once mighty Syracuse is now less than a tenth of its former size and the magnificent buildings erected by its successive rulers of the olden days have long since crumbled to dust.

Newspaper writers are continually scoring men and women for their street car manners and I have come to the conclusion that this is done mostly to fill space and get up a mild sensation. I do not ride so very often on street cars, but I am quite observant and, judging from what I hear and read of public conveyance conduct in other lands I think we Americans average up pretty well. I frequently see elderly people given seats by younger ones and I do not see many "seat hogs." Indeed, I have found the conductors looking out sharply to see that young children for whom no fare is paid do not occupy seats when patrons are standing, but sit on their mother's laps. Many times tired workmen fail to give their seats to strong-looking young girls who are really much more able to stand, and I do not blame them. I have not the slightest sympathy with those writers who constantly inveigh against present-day manners. I find this is a mighty good old world with hosts of the finest kinds of people in it, whom it is a pleasure to meet. Let's keep smiling and look always on the bright side. We can do that and yet not condone anything that leads to disrespect for holy things and to the lowering of moral standards.

Despite many "explanations," we common people are still so dense we cannot see the justice of the charge of $30 for installing a water meter. The charge is not for the meter, for that is not very valuable, and besides it is not yours, anyhow, for you cannot take it away, ditto in regard to the meter box, so the charge must be for making the connection. But for a more complicated meter and connection with the street main and, in addition, 50 feet of pipe laid in your lot, gas companies tax you $5 or less, generally less. They furnish more gas pipe, several dollar's worth, do just as much labor and yet charge only one-sixth as much or less for the service. And they are "soulless corporations," while the water company is the property of all the citizens. We still want to be shown.

Several weeks ago it was announced that the street repair department was at work and that holes in the surfacing of the streets would all be filled up. Possibly the outfit has been busy all this time but if so, it had a bigger job before it than was contemplated, as thus far few streets show much improvement. Many of the city's thoroughfares that are not heavily traveled could be made quite passable for vehicles by judicious resurfacing of worn spots. On Harvard, just east of Glendale avenue, the street has many deep holes in it that are dangerous for autos, but a concrete filling and smoothing of these cavities would give a reasonably level surface that would be good for some time to come. Would not this be true economy?

People who profess not to believe the Bible grasp eagerly at anything which seems to corroborate their view. They acclaim the works of Spencer, Darwin and others, because the theories advanced controvert Bible truths. They eagerly assert that geology shows the earth to have been millions of years in the making and that contradicts the Bible statement that it is only 6000 years old. But the Bible makes no such statement. It gives the genealogy of Adam and his descendants and man has figured that from the time of his expulsion from the Garden of Eden to the present time, is about 6000 years. But Adam and Eve may have lived in the garden for thousands, yea millions of years. And Moses' narrative says that the earth was created in six successive periods which are translated days, and that process may have taken millions of years also. Herein is no conflict between science and the Bible. Moses traces the genealogy of Adam alone and pays no attention to that of other peoples, and ther may have been one such race, in the "land of Nod," where Cain fled and later married. The Bible traces the successive steps in the evolution of man from the days before the flood to present times but it states emphatically that God created man in His own image, from the dust of the earth, "male and female created he them." That being which was created in the image of God did not come up from a monkey, no matter what Darwin and those of his ilk declare. Man came down, and since his creation has been coming up toward the divine goal, which he will reach some day. All honor to such great thinking men as Wm. J. Bryan, who fearlessly declare, in the face of such iconoclasts as Darwin, Spencer, Huxley and others, the truth of God's divine word. All the great men of our country were believers in the Bible—Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, the Harrisons, Lincoln, McKinley, Roosevelt and many others. Woodrow Wilson, President Harding and others of today's great statesmen of this nation as well as those of countries across the waters, believe in the Old Book. Every fundamental law on our statute books was based on the code of laws given by Jehovah to Moses more than 3000 years ago. The finest literature and the most beautiful word paintings are in the Bible. Judah's plea that his aged father be not bereft of his dearly beloved youngest son is sublime in its pathos; Ruth's declaration to Naomi is not surpassed in literary beauty; the book of Job is one grand poem; the Psalms have never been equalled in literary beauty and the proverbs of Solomon are jewels of wisdom. The Sermon on the Mount is a masterpiece of new conceptions of man's duty to man and many of the Savior's other utterances are divine in their simplicity and completeness. Paul is more quoted than any other writer and his teachings are a guide for all Christians. The Bible, the oldest book in the world, is every year, the one "best seller," by millions of copies. What are the puny assaults of such pigmies as Darwin et al against this "Book of the Ages?"

Some people complain that newspapers get many things wrong. But these people should remember that the information printed in newspapers all comes from some one else and the mistakes are generally made by the informant. For instance, a report printed in this paper recently of a dog biting a young woman was nearly all wrong. The victim was reported as the daughter instead of the wife of a certain man, and one of his initials was wrongly given. The numbers of the residences of the victim and of the owner of the dog were given correctly, but the street name was wrong in each instance. Yet this report was taken from the health officer's records. Possibly his informants were wrong in their statements. Now do you see what a task is before the newspaper to give the news correctly?

FARMERS' WORLD LEAGUE PROPOSED

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

GENEVA (By mail to United Press).—League of Nations circles have just given their full approval of the project launched by Victor Boret, former French minister of agriculture and president of the French National society for the Encouragement of Agriculture, for the organization of an "International Agraire."

The formation of this new "Internationale" will, according to present plans, take place during the coming year. The organized agriculturists of Belgium have already pronounced themselves in favor of the project while those of Germany, England and Switzerland will take action this summer. M. Boret has just launched an appeal to the agriculturists of Italy to line up with those of France in support of the project.

HELP KIDNEYS BY DRINKING MORE WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs.

Jad Salts in inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia water drink, which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Adv.

ROCKEFELLER'S 'BILL OF RIGHTS' FOR WORKERS

Urges Big Business to Remember Man Is Human Being First and Industrial Worker Second

Labor Platform Submitted to Babson Institute

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Feb. 23, 1923.—"Man is a human being first, and a member of industry afterward," from that beginning, J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., son of the Standard Oil King outlines a remarkable program, not for the worker but for the employer.

The nation has been watching for a bill of rights, for a worker's bill of rights—a common sense platform—that could be generally accepted by industry, but we hardly expected it to come from the wealthiest interests in America.

Yet J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., he of the name that has heretofore characterized capitalism in the mind of the worker, has submitted a program to the Babson institute, in hope that it will be adopted by industrial executives everywhere. As you read it you can understand why this junior Rockefeller has been recognized in the financial world as an unusual power, and has been noted among those who know him personally for his unusual vision and fairness.

1. "I believe that Labor and Capital are partners, not enemies," says Mr. Rockefeller, "that their interests are common, not opposed and that neither can attain the fullest measure of prosperity at the expense of the other, but only in association with the other.

"I am for an eight hour day and a six day week," continues Mr. Rockefeller. "Any schedule requiring longer hours and which does not provide for one day in seven in which the worker can rest and recuperate, is unsound, uneconomic and unjustifiable. In such industries as must of necessity operate continuously, night and day, 365 days in the year, schedules must be arranged so that the worker has an eight hour day and a six day week or its equivalent.

"I am for this because I feel that a good many of the industrial disputes of the past have risen from the fact that employers under stress of circumstances and competition have broken away from this basic fact that man is a human being first, and an industrial worker afterward. The adoption of the eight hour day in the general industrial field will tend to increase efficiency and will bring the less scrupulous and less enlightened elements of competition into line.

2. "I believe that the community is an essential party to industry and that it should have adequate representation with other parties.

3. "I believe that the purpose of industry is quite as much to advance social well-being as material prosperity; that, in the pursuit of that purpose, the interests of the community should be carefully guarded, management adequately recognized and capital justly compensated, and that failure in any of these particulars means loss to all four parties.

4. "I believe that every man is entitled to an opportunity to earn a living, to fair wages, to reasonable hours of work and proper working conditions, to a decent home, to the opportunity to play, to learn, to worship and to love as well as to toil, and the responsibility rests as heavily upon industry as upon government or society, to see that these conditions and opportunities prevail.

"Every worker has a right to comfortable living conditions. As a fellow human being, the worker is entitled to health, comfort and contentment. Wage scales should be measured in these items and not in dollars.

"This is no plea for paternalism. Personally, I dislike even the word. These elements of health and happiness must be provided not through chance generosity nor paid welfare schemes, but they must be adopted in the spirit of fair play; in the spirit of common sense. I am sure that any added burden that many temporarily appear upon the adoption of such a policy will be taken care of in increased production and the elimination of waste through carelessness and lack of interest.

5. "I believe that diligence, initiative and efficiency, wherever found, should be encouraged and adequately rewarded, and that indolence, indifference and restriction of production should be discountenanced.

6. "I believe that the provision of adequate means of uncovering grievances and promptly adjusting them, is of fundamental importance to the successful conduct of industry.

"I am for employee representation," adds Mr. Rockefeller in making his sixth point. "Every shop, every factory, every large organization in the country should have a committee of workers who can appear before the directing head of that business and voice any complaint or grievance which their constituents may have, without the possibility of suffering personally because of the criticism or complaint. In fact, if I had my way the workers would be represented officially upon the board of directors. I do not believe that there should be any discrimination upon the part of either management or workers because of any man's affiliation with a society, fraternity or union. Any organization or arrangement which tends to improve working conditions is justifiable and should be encouraged as long as it does not hinder the rights of another group.

7. "I believe that the most potent measure in bringing about industrial harmony and prosperity is adequate representation of the parties in interest; that existing forms of representation should be carefully studied and availed of insofar as they may be found to have merit and are adaptable to conditions peculiar to the various industries.

8. "I believe that the most effective structure of representation is that which is built from the bottom up; which includes all employees, which starts with the election of representatives and committees in each industrial plant, proceeds to the formation of joint district councils and annual joint conferences in a single industrial corporation, and admits of extension to all corporations in the same industry, as well as to all industries in a community, in a nation, and in the various nations.

9. "I believe that the application of right principles never fails to effect right relations; that 'the letter killeth but the spirit giveth life;' that forms are wholly secondary, while attitude and spirit are all-important; and that only as the parties in industry are animated by the spirit of fair play—justice to all, and brotherhood—will any plan which they may mutually work out succeed.

10. "I believe that that man renders the greatest social service who so cooperates in the organization of industry as to afford to the largest number of men the greatest opportunity for self-development and the enjoyment of those benefits which their united efforts add to the wealth of civilization.

"Finally," says Mr. Rockefeller, "I believe in the stockholder's responsibility. Unfortunately, I am a minority stockholder in practically all of the concerns in which I am interested, but I do not believe that the fact that I am a minority stockholder and, therefore, have no legal right or voice in the management, absolves me from responsibility in this matter of industrial relations. I am making every effort that I possibly can to be sure that my views will be considered, that my voice will be heard by the management of these concerns and I earnestly urge every other minority stockholder to make a strenuous effort to bring whatever influence he has to bear on this point. Adopting a common sense attitude on this all-important matter, America can continue to progress and we can enjoy prosperity as the greatest industrial nation in the world. Continued nagging, squabbling, and endeavoring to take advantage of the other fellow, can only lead to more strife, greater loss, disappointment and disaster for every one concerned."

Yes, it looks as though one of the greatest "capitalists" of them all has written the workers' bill of rights.

The Babson Institute experts, whose business it is to cut away the trappings and get down to fundamentals have endorsed it, not only as reasonable but as a practical program. Economic history teaches that almost any industrial ill can be remedied by following in substance Mr. Rockefeller's basic principle, "Every worker is a human being first, and industrial worker second." To this need only be added the axiom that the worker is a rational being and if faced by the same set of facts that the employer faces he would come to the same conclusion.

ETHEL CLAYTON IN NEW ROLE AT THE GLENDALE

Ethel Clayton in her most spectacular production is at the Glendale Theatre. It is called "If I Were Queen" and was founded upon the novel "The Three Cornered Kingdom" by Du Vernet Rabell.

"If I Were Queen" shows a new Ethel Clayton. Beautiful and talented as ever, Miss Clayton is at her artistic best in romance of this character. Her picture has atmosphere; it has body, it has all the color and picturesqueness of the mythical kingdoms of the Balkans where it is laid.

If you remember the charm of "Beverly of Graustark" you have some idea of the appeal of Miss Clayton's latest production — her first, by the way, for the Film Booking Offices of America. It is the story of the adventures of an American girl in the imaginary principalities of Central Europe amid regal pomp and splendor of high courts and castles. It is romance from beginning to end, romance of the most charming character and it is in this phase of her art that Miss Clayton proves herself a star of the purest ray serene.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC WORKS

Public notice is hereby given that the Council of the City of Glendale on the 19th day of February, 1923, did, at its meeting on said day, adopt Resolution of Intention No. 1818, to order the following improvement to be made on a portion of Harvard Street in the City of Glendale.

That the public interest and convenience require, and it is the intention of the Council of the City of Glendale to close up, vacate and abandon for street purposes that portion of more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at the southwesterly corner of School and Harvard Streets; thence westerly along the southerly line of Harvard Street eighty-four (84) feet to the beginning of a curve concave southeasterly of radius fifteen (15) feet from which point said radial line bears S. 0 degrees 2 min. LOOKS LIKE A ROWBOAT, BUT THE SKIPPER INTENDS TO TRY TO CIRCLE GLOBE WITH IT

William Roland is 42 years old and a seafaring man of the old school. He believes that he will be able to sail around the world in the little makeshift, sloop-rigged vessel shown above. It is little larger than a rowboat. Roland built the craft himself and sails it single-handed.

FACTORS IN LONGEVITY

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

In preparing his recently published book on old age —"Senescence; or, The Last Half of Life"—Dr. G. Stanley Hall put to a number of old people the perennially interesting question, "To what do you ascribe your long life?" Varied though the answers were, emphasis was pretty generally placed on certain influences.

Most frequently, according to Dr. Hall, mention was made of a good heredity. And undoubtedly to inherit a strong constitution is a factor of the first importance, albeit, as Dr. Hall dryly notes, over-credit often is given to one's ancestors where one's personal longevity is concerned:

"There is a tendency in the old to inventory the virtues of parents and ancestors, and a deep-seated belief, even in these democratic days, that blood will tell."

Manifestly, no matter how good the inheritance, longevity must always depend to some extent on the long-lived person's own efforts. It is conceivable that these may suffice to win longevity despite the handicap of a poor inheritance. Several of the respondents to the Hall questionnaire believe this to be strikingly illustrated in their cases.

Frail, almost feeble in youth, they made a business of conserving their health by studying and heeding the requirements of hygienic living. They built themselves up by carefully regulated exercise, they paid attention to diet; above all, they observed the rule of moderation in everything.

By a majority, in fact, and rightly, moderation was stressed as making for longevity. Some, in answering Dr. Hall, specifically stated that they had been alarmed by perceiving the evil consequences befalling friends who had not practiced moderation, that this had led them to become more moderate themselves, and that they felt certain their own longevity was directly due to the changes then instituted.

Moderation in diet was particularly extolled as life-producing. Nearly all those questioned had quite evidently a firm belief in the necessity of heeding the warning implied in the old proverb, "Many men dig their graves with their teeth." Some also made it clear that they deemed it fully as important to control the feelings as to curb the appetite.

Refusal to worry and cultivation of cheerfulness were given a foremost place in the answers returned by such as appreciated the psychic as well as the physical factors in longevity. And it is noteworthy that one old lady mentioned as having been conspicuously helpful to her "progressive self-forgetfulness and devotion to the service of others."

There is, of course, such a thing as injuring the health through over-readiness to be self-denying and self-sacrificing. But, as a general thing, experience indicates it to be true that those most ardent to serve are rewarded by a lengthening of life. Nor is it surprising that this should be the case.

Self-forgetfulness in service makes above all else for happiness. Happiness is dynamic, is energizing. And the greater the fund of energy within one the greater the chance of survival.

Which it were well for those of us who crave longevity to keep constantly in mind. Personally, I am convinced that as between the psychic and the physical aids to long living the former are the more influential.

ON MEASUREMENT OF IRRIGATION WATER

"The Measurement of Irrigation Water on the Farm" is the title of a new circular, No. 250, recently issued by the University of California College of Agriculture. The publication discusses most of the common methods of measuring water, laying especial emphasis upon the adaptability of each method toward the conditions which may be found on the farm of the actual water user.

The work contains many useful tables, some of which appear for the first time in a form available for public distribution. Tables showing the discharge through submerged orifices for various sizes of openings and for various pressures have been supplied through the courtesy of the Kern County Land company. Other tables showing the discharge over weirs is based on the recent work of Victor M. Cone at Fort Collins, Colorado. Rectangular, cipolletti and triangular weirs are considered in detail and discharge tables for each type included.

Copies of Circular No. 250 can be obtained free of charge by addressing the director of the College of Agriculture, University of California, Berkeley.

BEHAVIOR OF THE LEAF NOSED SNAKE

"Behavior of the Leaf Nosed Snake, Phyllorhynchus Decurtatus" is the title of a publication recently issued by the University of California as one of the series of university publications in zoology.

The publication, which is edited by Miss Sarah Rogers Atsatt, instructor in biology in the University of California, deals with the habits and behavior of the first specimen of the leaf nosed snake to be recorded from California. This specimen was found on March 25, 1921, near Palm Springs, Riverside county. The snake is now preserved in the museum of vertebrate zoology of the University of California.

One of the peculiar characteristics of this specimen of snake discovered was its marked tendency to hide itself in the sand. It could creep in by side movements of the head and body and complete burial by this process required from two to three and half minutes. Light rather than temperature seemed to be the controlling factor leading it to hide in the sand. Under electric light and in direct sunlight the snake drew back into shadow.

It's easy for a millionaire to preach the virtues of poverty.

HUMAN INTEREST MONDAY NOW IN SENATE

By LAWRENCE MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. (United Press).—Upon the prosy and unemotional record of the U. S. Senate, it appears as "calendar Monday," but a better name for it would be "Human-interest" Monday.

Calendar interest in the senate is devoted to consideration of routine bills, most of them considered of minor importance. Upon that day, great national and international questions are shunted aside for a few hours, while senators get close to the people. Upon that day, the senate, like the Caliph Haroun-al-Raschid, listens to appeals from unimportant and obscure men and women, who in one way or another, have accumulated troubles that they believe it is up to the government to solve for them.

Now there is nothing in the rule covering calendar Monday about all this. There is no thought in the senate's mind as it takes up the calendar of bills, piled up into a great heap, that it is to deal with human happiness and misery more intimately perhaps on that day than when it is legislating on some great question which touches the people in the mass, but passes them over as individuals. Yet that is just what happens. For calendar Monday is the day the claim bills get considered.

These bills represent heartaches, illness, injury, heroism, suffering, hope long deferred, death. They represent individuals. Each one of them bears the name of some man or woman.

"A bill for the relief of John Smith," the secretary reads.

And there is unfolded a tale of an employe of the U. S. life saving service on the California coast. He is injured in the performance of his hazardous duty. The muscles of his shoulder are torn and lacerated. He is permanently disabled.

All this happened in December, 1901, more than 20 years ago. This man is unable to earn his living. He served to the best of his ability but he cannot serve any more. And now it is proposed to pay him, out of the treasury, the magnificent sum of $1,560 in total settlement of all claim against the government. The bill originally called for $2,000, but a conscientious claims committee thought the man's suffering and disability worth only the smaller sum.

Of course he gets it, promptly! He does NOT. Somebody wants "more information" about the case, and the bill goes over until the next calendar Monday, and the next and so on.

Next comes an unusual case. The man in whose behalf it was first brought to the attention of congress has long ago passed to his final reward. His heirs are still trying to get something of what is due them.

It is the case of a man who did some asphalt paving in the District of Columbia more than 30 years ago. In 1892, some tribunal decided he was entitled to $10,000 for the work. He couldn't get it. The bill now pending provides that his heirs shall accept $3,100 in full settlement of that thirty year old $10,000 claim. Probably be glad to get it. They get it, of course, by unanimous consent! They do NOT get it. After ten minutes debate, the bill goes over, along with John Smith's claim.

Only a minute is taken to dispose of the next claim, a small matter of $512 asked by a woman who hurt her back by falling over some mail sacks thrown on a sidewalk in front of a Brooklyn, N. Y., postoffice in 1918. A claim so comparatively young and active is apparently not worth debating about, so it goes over quickly.

Comes next the case of the poor chap who was confined in a government hospital for the insane. He escaped—escaped from the government's care, from the custody of those whose duty it was to watch and care for him. He wandered far away. His family—not the government—traced him, found him and cared for him. It was expensive, more expensive than that particular family could afford. They asked Uncle Sam to share the cost. They wanted $2000. In previous consideration of the bill, on some other calendar Monday, the senate decided $1,500 was enough, but it couldn't then make up its mind to pay that out. But on this particular day it progressed a step further and passed the bill—the only one of a long, sad list of claim bills to be favorably acted upon. Now that bill goes to the House, and if on some day that body is favorably disposed, the family of the poor demented man may get its money. But that will be many, many months in the future.

There are many more of these bills called up this same day. There is an interminable list of them. The senate never gets to the end. It always turns aside to more important business, as when, on this particular day, it quit considering the woes of individuals and adopted a resolution to spent $2,000 investigating what the prisoners in Leavenworth prison ought to work at, and the sort of articles they ought to make, and another authorizing the agriculture department to spend an unnamed sum annually to pay expenses of American delegates to a road congress.

In addition, the words put out in discussion fill so many pages of the congressional record next day that the cost of printing them would pay a dozen of the claims that the senatorial Haroun-al-Raschid dismissed with a wave of its princely hand.

A SONG

Give us at the day's bright morning
Strength and courage for the day,
Give us gladness for adorning
All the hours along the way.
Give us love for friend and neighbor,
Give us strength and zeal for labor,
Give us tasks to test the worth of us, and time for rest and play.

Give us gratitude for beauty
Here and there and everywhere;
Give us gladness for the duty
And the burden we may share;
Give us merry smiles to brighten
All our tasks and love to lighten
Every burden, and a song of cheer to lift upon the air.

Give us hearts grown warm and tender
With the passing of the years;
Give us life with all its splendor,
With its laughter and its tears.
Give us ripened grain for gleaning,
Give us all to know the meaning
And the purpose of this being, unbeset with doubts and fears.

Give us grace for love and living,
Give us joys to seek and find;
Give us mercy for forgiving
Give us wisdom to be kind.
And through bright or stormy weather
Let us walk the way together,
And be glad to seek and follow where the paths of duty wind.
